

MedTech Europe Joins the European Diabetes Forum (EUDF) 7 April 2021

MedTech Europe and the European Diabetes Forum (EUDF) are pleased to announce that MedTech Europe will join the Forum in its mission of enabling healthcare systems to cope with the diabetes pandemic while achieving the best possible outcomes for people with diabetes.

By creating a unified voice from a wide range of diabetes stakeholders, including policymakers, patient organisations, healthcare professionals, research associations and industry, EUDF aims to foster dialogue, raise awareness and advocate for meaningful policy action on diabetes in Europe.

MedTech Europe brings to these collaborative efforts the unique knowledge and insights of the medical technology industry. The Diabetes Sector Group at MedTech Europe, representing nine leading diabetes technology companies, focuses in particular on the role of digitally enabled tools and services in improving diabetes treatment and care, as well as quality of life, for people with diabetes, their care teams and wider health systems.

EUDF and its members welcome the addition of the medical technology sector's perspective on the Forum to help strengthen the voice of diabetes in Europe and advance prevention, treatment and care.

About MedTech Europe
